BACKGROUND

During my time studying at CCA, I lived in the Mission District for over 3 years.

This area is situated right in the heart of a hub for Asian and Latino immigrants.

I often observe these immigrants while they are working.
They are usually unable to communicate in English.

San Francisco Relies Heavily On Immigrants

35% foreign-born.

*U.S. Census Bureau

Mission & Chinatown: 50%–70% non-English-speaking households.

Asian and Hispanic populations: The two largest pillars.

They shoulder the city's dirtiest and most grueling—yet most essential—foundational work, including construction, restaurant kitchens, home cleaning, hotels, and elderly care.

60%

Without this group, SF's pillar industries would be completely paralyzed.

Digital Exclusion From Mainstream Gig Platforms

Identity
Most platforms require an SSN and a background check (new immigrants may not have).

Financial
Users often need a U.S. bank account, which can be difficult for new immigrants to open.

Digital
English-only interfaces and complex gig systems are difficult to understand.

They are not only workers, but also members of the community. Their opportunities and well-being shape the future of the region.
